

Electronic Program Used Against Woodrow Riley?

Turned Cox DVR back in => suddenly able to read again?

Despite the prolific writing I have done this year pdflistfor2008.htm I have been suffering along with a serious issue of being unable to read for very long. I had thought I was having an issue called Ocular Myasthenia Gravis, muscle-wasting of the muscles that control a person's eyes. This past week I turned in my Cox DVR recorder. After returning home I began to feeling noticeably different, better, the following day noting my "foggy brain" had lifted.

We all recall back several decades back when the Russians were bombarding the US Embassy with microwaves, right? And we know "Homeland Security" and every other American spy agencies are now legally able to do most anything they want, right? Katie bar the door no more; Katie's gone.

I will guess that my particular selection of movies & shows to watch provided them a type of answer to their brainwave-determining algorithm, then figuring out what frequency range would knock out the optical reception area of my brain... and it has been running me down with lethargy-level knockout drops every time I have tried to read for the last several years. For what purpose?!

Perhaps to stop my writing? Perhaps to permanently stop my writing. Since I no longer have the Cox DVR recorder I was renting I have no way of checking it if I was wanting to prove it; but I did prove it because this past week I have been able to read an increasing amount of literature without my brain conking out wasted. Yesterday I read from the Bible, from Colossians through Hebrews in one stretch.

I had also read much the same amount the day before on the 18th of Dec. so I have all the proof I need. My living quarters were being subjected to electronic loading, probably an implanted sound program inside the DVR memory chips playing 2nd fiddle on a second sound track as I watched TV & movies. I noticed I could watch shows for HOURS but when I went to read something I would suddenly be needing a 4-hour dropsy nap soon after.

I seriously doubt Cox Cable considers it possible to do to "their equipment" but it isn't "their equipment" because it is approved FCC equipment required to do whatever the FCC says it is required to do: the chips it has to use. Done deal. I am doing much improved now as I try to regain lost mileage. Thanks.

Still fighting the fine fight and the rest of you

Christians have been WARNED of this electronic tool being used to stop us reading and studying the Scriptures

as well our Bible Study literature and Watchtower magazines.

Can "mental" (mind-located) illnesses be magnified by electronics? ADHD?
